Excerpt: . . . staggered, doubting in his heart that he was overbold. For in that moment she had flashed upon him like a jewel; and even through the strong panoply of a previous love he had been conscious of a shock. Next moment he had dismissed the fear. Both Otto and the Countess retired early from the drawing-room; and the Prince, after an elaborate faint, dismissed his valet and went forth by the private passage and the back postern in quest of the groom. Once more the stable was in darkness, once more Otto employed the talismanic knock, and once more the groom appeared and sickened with terror. Good evening, friend, said Otto, pleasantly. I want you to bring a corn sack--empty this time--and to accompany me. We shall be gone all night. Your Highness, groaned the man, I have the charge of the small stables. I am...
